He started training as a teacher but had to leave the course due to a short- term health problem. He has a BA in Drama but since he left his teacher-training course he hasn't been able to find any acting jobs. He has been working in an M&S petrol station for the last 18 months, but he would ultimately like to become a psychologist or a counsellor, but he doesn't know what qualifications would be needed for this type of career. Being an actor, and having experience working with customers, Zackery is confident that his communication skills are good. But he would like to have a career that he really enjoys as commitment to the job is something that he finds difficult.

Jessie:

Jessie started an engineering degree in 2018 but found the qualification very difficult and left the course. She has a CamTech Level 3 diploma in Engineering and two A-levels in Physics and Maths. Prior to joining university she had done some voluntary and paid work as a camera assistant working with local theatres. She has also worked part time in a book shop. Unfortunately, due to all the theatres closing, she hasn't done camera work in a long time and feels a lack of confidence. But she still enjoys working with cameras and theatres. She would like to become more flexible with her time as her only commitment now is part time work in the book shop. She would like to get a career going and know it will be important to improve her social confidence and her communication skills, but she doesn't know how to.

Adam:

Adam left school earlier this year with five GCSEs graded 3-5 and wanted to become a carpenter through an apprenticeship with a local carpentry firm. Unfortunately, the Covid-19 lockdown meant his apprenticeship was cancelled and the carpentry firm has now gone bust. He would still like to become a carpenter, or something similar, but he doesn't know of any other companies in the area. He is also unaware of any schools or colleges that might offer a useful course. He feels he is very shy and he hasn't worked as part of a team since leaving school. But he knows that he would need to build his teamwork skills if he is going to do an apprenticeship. He has created a CV and is trying to get a part time job locally. But he knows he lacks the enthusiasm and the motivation to get a job with a company that he's not so interested in.

Bethany:

Bethany is a creative person who has a passion for illustration and graphic design. She lives in the countryside and can't drive yet so travelling is very difficult for her. She is also part way through a blacksmithing apprenticeship specialising in the Maintenance and Reproduction of Japanese Medieval Armour. She sometimes gets paid commissions from collectors or museums for this work but seeing as all of the museums have been closed she hasn't received any blacksmithing work in over 6 months. She would like to work on her punctuality and communications skills, but living in a rural area means finding a part-time job is very difficult. She does have seven GCSEs graded B to D, a Level 3 BTech in Creative Arts and a Foundation Degree in Fine Art. She would ultimately like a creative career.
